Food Insurance For Your Family

At Noah's Pantry we specialize in nutritious, dehydrated food products. In fact, we have a variety of over 50 different types of dehydrated food products. These dehydrated products can be safely and conveniently stored, then rehydrated easily for meal preparation (and we have serving suggestions to make it easier for you). If you are one of the many people who are taking seriously the need to prepare for your family's emergency food supply, we can help.

We take tremendous pride in providing you with the finest dehydrated food products anywhere. Our products are sealed in #10 (approximately 1 gallon) enamel coated cans, and are dry packed with oxygen absorber packets. This process gives the maximum storage life (in excess of 10 years for all products).

Why should I buy dehydrated food products?

Dehydrated food packed in oxygen-free dry packed cans provide several benefits over products that are "wet packed" (like a can of store bought green beans), boxed food products, or food products stored in plastic bags.

First is the issue of nutrition. Canned vegetables, whether store bought or home-canned, lose 40% of their nutritional value through the canning process. Dehydrated vegetables, on the other hand, lose only 5%, retaining 95% of their nutrients. Put another way, your family would have to eat 35% more canned vegetable to get the same amount of nutrients found in prepared dehydrated food products.

Second is the issue of convenience. Grocery store canned products are "wet packed", making the finished product much heavier and more bulky to store than dehydrated products. Also, wet-packed canned products are not recommended for storage periods of longer than one to two years. Noah's Pantry products can be stored in less than 1/6th the area the size needed to store the same amount of wet-packed canned food.

The third advantage of dry packed dehydrated food is long term product integrity. As previously mentioned, all of Noah's pantry food products are packaged in oxygen free #10 cans, ensuring that when you need to access your long term food storage, it will be nutritious and free of contamination by insects or rodents.

Uncertain times ahead?

Let's face it, no one wants to entertain the thought of economic or social turmoil in the near future. The thought of purchasing dehydrated food for long term storage may be new to you. It certainly isn't something most folks have ever thought they'd want...or need. But the winds of change are blowing. The world economy is unstable, and the centralized systems by which we get our foods are dependent on a functioning economy to make it from the fields to the shelves of America's supermarkets.

Is it possible that drastic changes may occur to our way of life? A rapidly increasing number of people believe so. These are not crackpots or fear-mongers, but educated, responsible people who are not content to live in denial when the evidence seems to point towards difficult days ahead. The only thing worse than living in difficult times is trying to live in difficult times unprepared.

Noah's Pantry commends you for pursuing more information concerning food preparedness. Your prudence just might pay off huge dividends for you and your family!
